Why do you need ClassACT for Inclusion?

You and your special education colleagues are a great team working together in the best interest of the student; nevertheless, individual instructors, schools, school districts — and even states are subject to liability for failing to adequately adhere to government guidelines pertaining to education laws. The issue of accountability will be even more important in today's and tomorrow's public school climate. Insufficient funding, oversized classrooms, teacher attrition & shortages, special education mainstreaming, discipline problems, along with state guidelines and federal laws, such as No Child Left Behind, create even more challenges for educators in the classroom. Despite these obstacles, the dedication that you and your teaching team possess ensures that you will always find a way to accomplish your goals — and you need to document it!
